Artist Bio:

Tungasugit, Welcome. Originally from Williams Lake, British Columbia, Brandy Jones is an Inuit artist based out of Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada. Her art is an abstract interpretation of many styles of native art combined. Her work is inspired by Haida, Salish, Inuit and Plains art, The bright colors represent all nations.

Brandy's work represents the unity of all Indigenous nations and forms a unique abstract style of her own that has not been seen before. Her intention is to place a spotlight on the Indigenous Peoples of Canada and the fibers of their rich and colorful heritage. She strongly believes that there is healing through heritage and continues to learn and share knowledge daily.

Brandy has been privileged to work full time as an artist and chooses to use her gifts and voice to both educate and inspire people on the beauty, hardships and success that Indigenous people have faced in the past and present. Brandy values her time with her family and friends and tries to interact with her customers and the people in her life on a personal level. Her use of abstract mixed mediums leaves the viewer with the curiosity to explore the layers of beauty that lie within Canada's Indigenous peoples.

Brandy's artwork can be found on her Artists Instagram (@BrandyJonesIndigenousArtist) or her Facebook page.

Redevelopment Update

"November marks the end of era for Globe Theatre. We have officially packed up and moved out of 1801 Scarth Street! Since 1981, Globe has called the Prince Edward Building home and now for the next few years, this will not be the case. Our precious heritage building is undergoing the necessary renovation to sustain Globe in the heart of Regina's downtown for decades to come.

In the meantime, our team will be moving to 500E - 2201 11th Avenue, where we will be scheming and planning upcoming programming for you to enjoy! Stay tuned for more information on our renovation and programming!"

Globe Theatre School

After a successful launch this past summer, our One-on-One Online Program returned for a fall session. Seven wise and wonderful teachers joined students from around the world to engage with theatre. Classes filled up quickly, and with the help of ZOOM, our Artist/Instructor team connected with emerging artists based out of Regina, Saskatoon, London (England), and Warsaw (Poland).

The teachers customized a training plan for each student. The variety in age, experience, or artistic interest meant that the teachers made unique opportunities to engage with their students directly as writers, actors, collaborators and critics.

And we offered these sessions for free in recognition of the uncertainty of employment and support during rapidly shifting circumstances.

In other education news Globe Theatre School is very happy to continue our collaboration with our friends at the Autism Resource Centre (ARC). From now until February, GTS Artist/Instructors Cam Chomyn & Sarah Bergbusch will be providing weekly, in-person Improv Sessions at the new ARC building. More exciting details about this collaboration to come.

Starlene is a Regina based emerging artist who joined our program this fall. Munish says that scene work with Starlene has been awesome, as there is clearly a ton of talent that was ready to be channeled.
