"There is a blue star in the sky this very minute."

Salt-Water Moon

March 19, 2014 – April 6, 2014

Jan. 27, 2014 – Oh, to be young and in love. This thought will fill your head after you're swept away by Globe Theatre's fifth production of its 2013 | 14 Main Stage season: Salt-Water Moon.

Salt-Water Moon takes place on a moonlit night in 1926 in rural Newfoundland. Mary Snow star gazes while waiting for her fiancé to visit her. She is instead visited by her former beau, Jacob Mercer, who left for Toronto the previous year to seek his fortune. Jacob has heard of Mary's engagement and wants to win her back. As the young lovers spend the evening making small talk, star-gazing and discussing the highs and low of their past relationship, the future of Mary's romantic life is suddenly up in the air.

Lauren Holfeuer (Snow) and Joshua Ramsden (Mercer) play the star-crossed lovers in Salt-Water Moon. Holfeuer, a 2012 graduate of Globe Theatre Conservatory, has previously acted in Pride and Prejudice and Sleeping Beauty at the Globe. It's the debut performance at the Globe for Ramsden, who will be attending Globe Theatre Conservatory this year.

Judy Wensel makes her Main Stage directorial debut in Salt-Water Moon after serving as an assistant director for Main Stage productions Shout Sister and Pride and Prejudice, directing Fusion 2013 and acting as co-director for Fusions 2011 and 2012. She has also appeared as an actor in many Main Stage productions including Sleeping Beauty, and put on a few Shumiatcher Sandbox Series performances, most recently Shangri-La. Making up the rest of the creative team are: Andrew Cull (set and costume designer), Charity Gadica (assistant set and costume designer), Leigh Ann Vardy (lighting designer), Jeremy Sauer (sound designer), Rebecca Miller (stage manager) and Angie Wangler (apprentice stage manager).
